“Research is done not in the laboratory of scientists; it is done in the minds of everyone who wants to be successful”

MaGC has been in the field of management consulting, training, and research. The result of successful advice to our clientele arises from expertise gained by MaGC through its research.

MaGC undertakes research for client problems that require a fresh and professional outlook based on actual data. The in-house research and regular updating of the staff at MaGC enables a scientific approach to problem-solving through research. MaGC undertakes research of issues at policy and process levels for issues that have remained unanswered or those that keep propping up.

RESEARCH

In an organizational context research looks at fresh thinking and innovative methods for being successful. Various options available to make an organization successful and sustainable can be understood only through research.

In India management or organizational research is in its infancy as most organizations are not aware that researching their organizations can actually help them. Research provides a scientific, professional, and independent view of the affairs of organizations in an unbiased manner, based on which breakthrough, innovative, and effective ideas and solutions can be developed.

The versatility of the assignments handled by

MaGC coupled with its academic and research focus has enabled MaGC provide research services to its clients. This support helps clients identify problems which they are not even aware of!

MaGC can undertake research studies that are out-facing (external) or in-facing (internal) that will be relevant in improving the topline and bottomline of organizations.

The research learnings and outputs by MaGC and its consultants have resulted in publication of usable research findings as monographs, articles, chapters, and even books. Such research findings help organizations improve their strategies and approaches for better management desired results.
